Flag Pole

Well, the flag pole is finally painted and overhauled. Our new system for raising and lowering the flag works real well. We put an additive into the paint, and it went up real easy.

I want to thank the camp club and everyone that worked up there last weekend. We got a lot done on the grounds, too.

Flag pole project chairman

Membership

This year, I hope good things will happen. I have some good things going this year. There is an application in the Eagle Claw. I would like to see over 1/2 of them returned with names on them. Here is what is going on - there will be a $10 drawing each month on the 1st Monday for those who brought in a member. Then all names go into a big pot for the end of the year. At the beginning of the new Eagle year, the 1st meeting in June, 2006, there will be a big drawing, for prizes of $100, $75, $50, $25 & $10.

Is there a catch, yes. You have to be present at the 1st mtg of the month after the new member joins. I hope to see lots of new members.

Membership Chairman

TeamWork

Very recently, my wife & I stopped at our club's lounge to have a Pepsi and listen to the Saturday night music. The old bar was still in place. We had heard of plans to replace the bar, but understood that it was "down the road a bit".

On Sunday morning, around 10 am, I stopped in to talk with Eric. I looked in the lounge and could not believe what I saw. The old bar was gone - and a new bar was in place. The top was in the process of being glued down. At that time, there was still work to be done before it would be operational. I asked one of the people when they started. I was told they started at 6 am. As a module, the bar was built off-site and then trucked over to the club.

When GraceAnne and I arrived for the Sunday dance, the bar was finished enough for it to be operational for the dance. The workers would be back at 5pm to finish up. Yes, there were some problems (a big drip being one), and they were worked on while people were dancing away. I thought about this years motto shown on the top of the front page. This was, indeed, a case of people working together. I did not get the names of all the people who were involved in this project, but, when I do they will get recognition in our newsletter. It is an example of people who are involved in this organization in many ways, and working together for its betterment.
